

Ushering in 2026 with a Bangda!

Spraypaint artist Tom "Welly" Wells has certainly made a splash with his new artwork for our gin, rum and vodka bottle labels. His specially commissioned piece, 'Big Bangda', features one of his 'spirit animals' - a panda - bursting out from a space-themed background, making a striking and unique image.

Tom's artwork is one of three new labels, all of which appear on our Blueberry & Bergamot Gin, Strawberry & Honey Spiced Rum, Watermelon & Thyme Vodka and our newly-launched Orange & Pomegranate Gin bottles.

The Devon-based artist is self-taught and has developed a style combining freehand techniques, textured effects, stencils and traditional brushwork. He has built a huge community of artists and enthusiasts through his social media platforms - @tomwellywells on Instagram, Tik Tok and YouTube - with over two million followers.

You can see how he created Modern Art Distillery's 'Big Bangda' artwork by watching his YouTube video.

Inspired by the natural world

Our second new label is by artist Anya Simmons who painted an enchanting scene of the south coast village of Langstone in Hampshire.

Anya is known for her vibrant and colourful depictions of coastal landscapes, whimsical harbours, quirky worlds and the ever-changing British countryside.

She spent her early childhood in Africa before moving to the UK – a rich tapestry of experiences that has profoundly shaped the diversity and creativity of her art.

Anya works mainly in mixed media with a distinctive approach that blends texture, bold colours and imaginative scenes that evoke both place and spirit.

Finally, we have a new label by Sussex landscape artist Chris Hill, whose wintry scene 'King of the Forest' captures the bleakness and beauty of a fox crossing a rural scene at sunset.

Chris's inspiration comes from the natural world around his local area of Eastbourne, where the South Downs meet the English Channel.

You can find all of our new labels in our online store, available in 70cl, 5cl and small gift box sizes.

The Bath Art Fair is held at the Bath Pavilion, North Parade Road, and is open from February 27 until March 1.

Artist news: John Goldsworthy

(c) John Goldsworthy

John Goldsworthy landed a slot in a Surrey art gallery thanks to his appearance at last year's Pub in the Park Reigate, when he joined the Modern Art Distillery to give painting demonstrations throughout the music festival weekend.

His work caught the eye of the Adams Gallery in Reigate High Street, and two of his paintings have subsequently gone on display - 'Margot & Rudolph' and 'Resurrection', both watercolour on paper.

John's painting of ballet dancers Margot Fonteyn and Rudolph Nureyev is based on the pair's final rehearsal for 'Pelleas and Melisande' - Fonteyn was a Reigate resident and a statue of her stands close to the town's railway station.

'Resurrection' (above) is John's art ode to the resurgence of vinyl - his inspiration comes from the connection people have with music and his paintings often feature music notes, piano keys and instruments that create a lyrical, rhythmical and whimsical quality to his work.

John's paintings 'Rhythm of the Rum' and 'Jazz in the Park' feature on Modern Art Distillery's Strawberry & Honey Spiced Rum (70cl and 50cl) and Blueberry & Bergamot Gin (50cl) bottle labels.

M.A.D gin is tailor-made for Roger's 80th

We were delighted to come up with an extra special, bespoke label for birthday boy Roger, who celebrated his 80th with a bottle of our London Dry Gin.

Roger, from Cheshire said: "It made my day - I'll certainly be keeping the bottle as a memento long after the gin has been drunk!"
